THE SAVING ART

They who are truly wise are ruled by love—not fear. It is the providential way of prophet, sage and seer.

Strike not at all—unless your aim is justice and the truth. To save a brother—not to maim in righteousness forthwith.

Haste not to grasp the two-edged sword. Let it should pierce your heart; do not offend a foe or friend. It is the saving art.

Rush not into a ruthless war. There death reigns o'er the slain. The victory that snare and snare is sure to leave a stain.

The blood of Abel left a stain on Cain's forehead and hand. The war god waded up again. To desecrate the land.

The thorny thistle and the briar Remain to this day. They also feel the vital power That passes not away.

Where are the kingdoms that did rise? The empires that did fall? Know ye the mystery that lies In Spirit over all.

AN AMERICAN AND A NEUTRAL.

The speech of Senator Pomeroy of Ohio on Thursday to a Washington audience in which were Mr. Wilson and three members of his cabinet is brave and heartening reading for a country weary of the gospel of peace before everything, of alien propaganda, of members of Congress eager to surrender or spineless to assert American rights upon the seas. The old American spirit, the spirit of a people that loves peace, but loves national self-respect greatly more, is in these words:

"If George Washington believed that the welfare of the country required that he should come forth from his retirement in his old days to take command of our army in order to defend the rights of Americans upon the high seas in 1797 and 1798, what would he do now when all the world is aflame, when Christian civilization is in arms, when the rights of neutrals are ignored and trampled upon when Americans are guilty of no offense save the exercise of their privileges upon the high seas? Would he leave our shores in a state of defenselessness? Would he forbid our Americans to follow their pursuits at sea?" "God knows," Mr. Mann said the other day in a sentence that will long stand in the pillory of loyal Americanism, "where we will land if this country enters the war." The men of 1776 took no such counsel of despair or doubt. Wherever they were to "land," they would not sacrifice right to fear.

Senator Pomeroy utters the sentiment of peaceful but manly and resolute Americanism. Between his own country and another, Mr. Mann seems to be at best a neutral.—N. Y. Times.

URGES ANTI-TRUST LAW

Attorney General Gregory Tells How to Handle Food Crisis.

Washington, Feb. 28.—Senator Borah's resolution to provide $6,000,000 for government relief in the food situation went to the senate appropriations committee. Attorney General Gregory wrote Senator Borah that the department of justice could only cope with the situation through the anti-trust law and pointed out that courts are persuaded with difficulty to apply it.

"The executive department alone cannot enforce the law," wrote the attorney general. "It must have the co-operation of the federal courts. I regret to say that a number of federal judges have been and are still apparently reluctant to enforce the Sherman act. I do not mean to charge that they deliberately attempt to obstruct the will of congress. I assume that their views of public policy do not agree with those of congress as expressed in the Sherman act, and that unconsciously they permit their own views as to what the law should be to affect their construction of the law as it is written."

"FRIENDS WERE ASTONISHED AT CHANGE," SAYS BOCK

After Spending Four Tedious Months in Suffering Man Regains Health by Use of Tanlac

After suffering for four months from an attack of lumbago and a severe case of liver trouble, coupled with a severe case of nervous indigestion, this man finally struck Tanlac which gave the longed for relief and Mr. H. L. Bock, 927 Parkview Ave., Youngstown, has the following to say of the Master Medicine:

"I really believe Tanlac saved my life, for I was continually falling in health despite the many who prescribed for me and the various strong medicines that I used.

"Why, before taking Tanlac a small piece of bread or potato would cause me terrible suffering. The little I did eat fermented in my stomach, filling my entire system with gas. Pains in my back and joints as a result of weak kidneys, caused me much misery. I never slept through the night without getting up a number of times. I got so weak that I could hardly move about.

"Well, sir, I started to take Tanlac, and to my astonishment I began to improve right off the reel. First, I noticed my appetite was increasing by leaps and bounds, and my food was digesting perfectly.

"Today I can absolutely eat anything I relish without any danger. I sleep soundly at night and my vim and energy has been restored. Work is now a pleasure instead of a duty. Pains and aches have disappeared.

"My friends can't get over how well I look. I tell them that Tanlac is the secret. Believe me, Tanlac will always be on hand in our household."

Mr. Bock is employed by the Youngstown Welding Company. Tanlac, the celebrated new combatant is being specially introduced through F. A. Morris' drug store, this city—adv.
